

8th International Workshop on Tracking Detectors in High Energy Physics

December 16-18, 2025

Experimental High Energy Physics, CoE Physics
National Centre for Physics, Islamabad

Introduction

The Experimental High Energy Physics (EHEP) department at the National Centre for Physics (NCP), Islamabad, is organizing the International Workshop on Tracking Detector Technologies. The workshop is a dynamic platform aimed at fostering collaboration within the Pakistani scientific community, including students, researchers and professionals.

This workshop will explore the latest advancements in tracking detector systems, emphasizing their pivotal role in modern physics experiments. Participants will gain comprehensive insights into cutting-edge technologies such as silicon detectors, hybrid pixel detectors, tracks identification, next-generation sensors, sensors fabrication, and detector readout systems.

Topics to be covered

- Innovative tracking architectures used in major experiments, including those at the LHC, CERN
- Advanced applications of silicon detectors in precision particle tracking
- Machine learning-based reconstruction algorithms for detecting invisible particles
- Emerging trends such as AI-enhanced real-time tracking and 4D tracking systems
- Broader applications of tracking technologies in medical imaging, space exploration, and security systems

During this event, there will be a dedicated half-day mini-workshop on machine learning in semiconductor detectors
